Books from PRESS

Empire Erotics and Messianic Economies of Desire

P. Travis Kroeker

CMU Press, 2016 | 91 pages, paper | $16.99

ISBN 978-0-920718-98-8

Pairing biblical and literary sources, the 2013 J.J. Thiessen lectures undertake a theological exploration of the crucial interconnections between desire (eros) and economics in our intimate and institutional relationships to money, material goods, and our most basic human aspirations. Beginning with an exploration of the distortion of messianic desire—self-emptying love—into the self-serving erotics of empire, this book asks how the messianic community can live out an alternative liturgy of service in the everyday.

A University of the Church for the World: Essays in Honour of Gerald Gerbrandt

edited by Paul Dyck and Harry J. Huebner

CMU Press, 2016 | 289 pages, paper | $29.99

ISBN 978-0-920718-99-5

This book answers the question of what it means to be a Mennonite university in a descriptive rather than a prescriptive way. It draws on the thought and experience of the faculty, staff, and alumni of Canadian Mennonite University, as well as the leaders of the churches that formed it and a neighbouring provincial university. While the book comes out of the life of CMU, it is meant as a resource for anyone interested in questions of religion and university.
